BARRETT MAY BE ASKED TO RESIGN

Board of Directors Highly Indignant Over Unnecessary
[Action of Official]

COMPANYS CREDIT INJURED

When Alleged Misconduct Could have been Aired "Internally"
— Charges Against Dale

Now for some more telephone talk without having the wires crossed by bias or prejudice. At last formal charges have been made against O. M. Dale, secretary-manager of the Co-operative Telephone company by Howard Barrett, one of the directors. The alleged telephone scandal has been talked over and re-hashed so often that it is not necessary to go into detail at this time. The board of directors, which has been time and again heralded as "unfair," "grafters" and so forth, by the honorable gentleman who now makes specific charges—after being forced by the persistent demand of this publication—readily agreed to hear any and all evidence at an early date concerning the matter long under discussion.

Just what Mr. Barrett is now doing was what the people demanded at first. But instead he went to two newspapers here and with long winded articles attempted to force upon the people the impression that he and he alone was the only honest man in the lot and that the stockholders could depend upon him to right all wrongs and look after their interests. It was most laughable. And more so when W. D. Root, another director, whom Barrett "took his name in vain," made specific charges against Barrett and published it over his own signature, claiming that Barrett had made a proposition to him and several other directors to take over the stock of the company and freeze the many stockholders out. If this statement was not true, Barrett had the recourse of suing for libel and slander, but he never even denied it. So much for that, for it has already been indelibly imprinted on the minds of the public.

It is not the intention of this publication to defend any wrongdoer or uphold or countenance any breach of trust by an official in charge of affairs where the public is vitally interested, as they are in the telephone company here. The automatic is one of our prides and joys: for no city in the country, large or small is better equipped than we are in this respect. We contended all along that if a director knew of any wrong doing in the company, it was his duty by virtue of his being entrusted to look to the interests of the stockholders, to make specific charges before the board in the proper manner and there have the matter adjusted to the satisfaction of all. On the other hand it was bad ethics to say the least and savored of politics and individual interest for Barrett to go out on the street corners and in the press assail one of the officials of the company in particular and the remainder in general, and was totally uncalled for. Had he brought the matter to the attention of the board and then had they refused to give him fair play it would have been time enough to take his troubles to the stockholders and let the public in on it in the spectacular manner he employed.

The Barrett story of alleged misconduct of affairs caused, as we predicted in one of our first articles, the company to get a "blackeye" in a financial way, and put it in a bad light, greatly damaging its credit. No sooner did the report become current than the Chicago company, which installed the new apparatus, closed in for a collection of $27,000. The board was obliged to make a rustle and borrow that amount from the local banks. If the money had not been forthcoming, in all probability it would have been thrown into the hands of a receiver, for that would have been the only alternative. One of the directors say: that was one of the things Barrett had in mind, because being an attorney and a member of the board, it would have meant hundreds of dollars in his pocket. Others on the board claim that Barrett long has been wanting to be the manager of the company and in fact has so declared himself on several occasions.

In the beginning Barrett directed his thunder against several members of the board, but seeing this did not set well on the public stomach, he has begun to focus his attacks against Dale.

Barrett's term of office expires in April and in probability he will be asked by the board to resign before that time. It is said that one of the directors is now framing a resolution which he will present at the meeting next Friday night asking Barrett to resign and if he does not, the directors may vote him off the board. If the statements made against him can be sustained by sufficient evidence, then it is right and meet that he be retired. And the same applies to Dale or any other member of the board. The fact that Barrett injured the credit of the company and spoke ill of the other directors is in itself enough to ask for his dismissal.

FIELD WAS IN A BAD SHAPE

And Rushville Boys were Handicapped in Contest with Richmond Lads

EIGHT POSTS IN THE WAY

And Local Basket Ball Team was Defeated by a Score of 38 to 19

One of the few defeats suffered this season by the Rushville high school basket ball team was the contest which slipped through the field goals in their game at Richmond last night with the high school team of that city by a score of 32 to 19.

The locals were handicapped in the field last night as it had eight large posts in it: the Quaker lads have been dodging these same posts for some time, and this proved a strong card in their favor. To the Rushville boys it was like a Mississippi river pilot taking his boat up the Nile.

The game was exceedingly rough, bordering on foot ball tactics, necessitating the rulings on a number of fouls. Good team work was displayed by both fives.

In the Rushville line-up were Bankert, left forward; Hiner, right forward; Williams, center; Dennis, left guard; Sparks, right guard; L. Maury, substitute. Following is the score.

Field goals, Bankert 2, Hiner 2, Williams 1, Dennis 1, Harrington 2, Thornburg 5, Allison 4, Marlatt 4, Tallant 1. foul goals, Bankert 6; fouls called, on Richmond 12, on Rushville 8; Points awarded, to Rushville 19; Score, Richmond 32, Rushville 19. Referee, H. Maury; umpire, Torrence.

MELODRAMA WAS CAUSE OF SHOCK

Mrs. Lon Ginn Suffered
Stroke of Paralysis at Close of Show

CARRIED TO THE WINDSOR

Where Physician's Were Called to Attend her—Second Stroke
in Two Weeks

Few people in the merry crowd at the Grand theatre realized that at the close of the performance last night when virtue triumphed after a number of pistols were fired and the usual number of knife plays were made, that the excitement of the closing scene, coupled with the cheering of the audience was the indirect cause of a woman suffering a shock which brought on a second stroke of paralysis.

Among the auditors were Mr. and Mrs. Lon Ginn who live four miles north of this city. Both had enjoyed the show immensely and were in the best spirits as they took their leave of the theatre. When near the bottom of the stairway, Mrs. Ginn gave a sharp cry and reeling forward would have fallen had not several who saw her predicament stretched forward helping hands and caught her. She was carried to the Windsor hotel, where Drs. Wooden and Green were called.

Until they arrived those who gathered around her were at a loss to know the cause of her sudden illness, but it developed that she suffered a first and light stroke of paralysis but two weeks ago. The excitement of the melodrama last night brought on another attack, but it will not prove serious.

Mrs. Ginn was removed to her home at a late hour last night.

SHORN SAMSONS IS THE SUBJECT

Which Earl Wilfley will Discuss at Men's Big Meeting
Sunday

GOOD MUSICAL PROGRAM

Will be Rendered by the Male Chorus, Quartet and Harrison Orchestra

Earl Wilfley, actor, who is to address the Men's Big Meeting on Sunday afternoon at St. Paul's M. E. church is a man of whom Indiana is justly proud.

The saying that a "man is not without honor save in his own country" does not seem to apply to Mr. Wilfley, as his own State capitol called him back four times to speak before the Men's Big Y. M. C. A. meeting at Indianapolis.

Mr. Wilfley is an eloquent and a pleasant speaker. His oratorical ability is recognized all over the country and he ranks as one of the foremost lecturers on the American platform.

His subject "Shorn Samson" is taken from the story in the old testament and is applied to men of the twentieth century and should be heard by every man in this city and community.

Don't forget the place at St. Paul's M. E. church, time 2:30 p. m., and the man is the eminent Earl Wilfley, the noted lecturer.

The musical program will be a special feature. Rushville boasts of one of the best orchestras in Eastern Indiana, with W. H. Harrison, the noted musician, formerly of Chicago, as leader.

The male quartette and big chorus have some excellent selections prepared and this part of the program will be enjoyed by all.

There is no admission charged to these meetings and every man in this community is invited.

TO HIS JAIL HE SEEKS SHELTER

Unfortunate Who Shaped
Every Stone Knocks for Admittance Last Night

WORKED ON COURTHOUSE

Expert Stone Driller who Made
Big Money, Obligated to Ask for Night's Lodging

A distinguished looking gentleman, with the English mutton chop facial growth—the General Arthur mode o whiskers—sat in the Windsor hotel last night for two hours waiting to see City Marshal Price. He was shabbily attired and had the appearance of one who surely had seen better days.

When Price turned in about 11 o'clock the fellow approached him and asked if it were possible that a place could be found where he could sleep for the night.

"I can put you in jail," said the officer.

"Very well," said the fellow in a basso profundo voice and with the dignity of a French diplomat. "I might say that that old jail contains many happy recollections in its walls of the good old days gone by."

"An old offender?" queried the officer.

"No sir," promptly answered the fellow, "but I spent many hours with the stones of that building. And every stone that went to make up those walls put money into my pocket. But the money flew out freely on the wings of Bacchus, and now I am obliged to seek shelter in a home I was instrumental in building."

The man stopped and gazed into space before him, dreaming of the rainbow days of the past. His story was an interesting one, and several eagerly pressed forward to hear it. The fellow continued:

"I am an expert stone driller, and not a stone went into the jail or court house here but what I put the steel into it. In those days I drew a princely salary for a workman but, it was easy come, easy go. I made enough money here to buy a home had I a mind to, and here I am returned like a prodigal, several years afterwards and forced to ask for shelter under the roof of a prison."

CHILD OF LINK JINKS SUCCEMDED LAST NIGHT

Jesse Jinks, the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Link Jinks, living north of New Salem, died last night after an illness of several days. Death was due to measles and pneumonia and a weakened heart. The child was born July 15, 1906. Funeral services will occur Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Little Flatrock Christian church, conducted by Rev. Roscoe Smith.

WATSON WINS THE LABOR VOTE

Gets Nearly all of the Madison County Delegates in Friday's Primary

IS CONCEDED VICTORY

Opposition Gives up the Ghost
Long Before the Polls were Closed—His Prophecy

Watson is a prophet as well as a statesman. He declared last week that he would not try to check Organizer Smith, a Democratic labor leader, from working against him, for it would be like killing the goose that laid the golden eggs. Friday in Madison county, a hot bed of unionism and laboring men, where Smith has worked untiringly for the past few days against Watson, the latter came out with colors flying, and will get twenty-six delegates out of thirty-two.

A dispatch from Anderson to the Indianapolis Star today says:

"The primary election held here to select delegates to the Republican State convention, resulted in the selection of twelve Watson delegates in this city.

There were but two tickets in the field—Watson and anti-Watson. Out of a total of 1,304 votes cast in the four voting districts, Watson received 933. The number of votes cast represents about one-half the vote of Anderson township, in which the city is situated.

The voters gathered early at the voting places in each district and the voting was conducted rapidly. The highest number of votes cast in the hour in which the polls were open, was in the Fourth district, there being 426 votes cast. This is a manufacturing district. The election passed quietly, there being no challenges nor repeating. There were two hundred or more voters assembled at each voting place when the polls were opened. Anti-Watson leaders conceded the victory of Watson before the vote was half over. They stated that when the churches and saloons joined hands to defeat them it is time to throw up the sponge.

Reports from other townships over the county indicate that Watson has received twenty-six delegates and Charles W. Miller three. These three were received in Elwood, where the delegation will be split. Madison county will send thirty-two delegates to the convention.

FARMERS TRAVEL ON ROUGH ROADS

Many Brave the "Bump-the-Bump" and Complain after Getting Here

Many farmers were here today and they declare the roads are worse than they have been for years. The dirt roads are almost impassable and the gravel roads are very soft and in many places are cut through. Fortunately not much heavy hauling is being done right now. One heavily loaded wagon going over a gravel road while in such condition will do a great deal of damage. Public highways should be protected against heavy loads when they are as soft as they now are.

THE WEATHER

Partly cloudy and threatening weather tonight and Sunday not much change in temperature.

MUST GO TO TRIAL

Indictments Against Former Treasurer of Michigan City Held Good.

HE REFUSED TO SETTLE

Report of Citizens' Committee Showed That Former Treasurer Meyer Was About $10,000 "Short."

Upon His Refusal to Settle the Grand Jury Returned Indictments and Trial Will Follow.

Laporte, Ind., Feb. 29.—Judge Richter, in the circuit court, has held that indictments against C. Elijah Meyer, city treasurer of Michigan City, charging misfeasance and malconduct in office, were good, and Meyer's trial will commence Monday.

Two years ago a citizens' committee examined the treasurer's office and a report was made showing that Meyer was short over $10,000 in his accounts, and Charles Miller, his predecessor, was short $3,000. Miller settled and no action was taken against him. Meyer refused to settle, and the grand jury returned true bills against him. In the first case to be tried he is charged with collecting a street paving assessment of $35.82 from Martin Plinski and failing to account for it.

ITALIANS IN DANGER

American Quarrymen Threaten to Run Competitors Out.

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 29.—The race trouble between Italians and Americans in the stone quarry district just south of here, resulted in the burning of the Italian store of Philip Rock, near Sanders. "Waste" from the quarries was piled at the front door and set on fire. The building was worth $200, and $600 worth of goods was destroyed.

Excitement is at a high pitch and a clash between the two sides is imminent. About 100 Italians live in the neighborhood. The feeling has been strong against them for months, because they are clannish and work for less money than the Americans.

The trouble at Oolitic, in Lawrence county, has stirred up matters at Sanders. Philip Rock owns a store at Oolitic and is leader of the Italians there. His son, Tony Rock, ran the store at Sanders and is hated by the American laborers.

It is not known who burned the store. Sanders people think Philip Rock's enemies came up from Oolitic and committed the crime. It is said the Americans have sworn to drive out the Italians, but the latter swear they will stay if bloodshed results. A week ago Company H of the Indiana national guard of this place expected orders to go to Oolitic. Now, it is said, the company may be sent to Sanders.

Kept His Eyes on the Ceiling.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Feb. 29.—The jury in the case of Otto Walker, charged with wife murder, reached a verdict of murder in the first degree, and fixed the punishment at life imprisonment. Thirty-four ballots were necessary before a verdict was reached. The first ballot stood six for the death penalty, four for life imprisonment and two for manslaughter. When the verdict of the jury was read by Deputy Clerk Rice, Walker's expression did not change. He continued to fix his eyes on the spot on the ceiling at which he has looked throughout the trial.

Death Reveals Identity.

Linton, Ind., Feb. 29.—Louis Doubledmont, who conducted what was known as the "Blue Goose" saloon, which achieved considerable notoriety and who suddenly disappeared two years ago, has been identified as the man killed in the Rood mine at Farmersburg by fall of slate. Doubledmont formerly engaged in the saloon business at Clay City. His wife and son were unable to get any trace of him until news came of his death.

Conviction of Andrew Mohr.

Osgood, Ind., Feb. 29.—The trial of Andrew Mohr of Batesville has ended in the conviction of the defendant on the indictment alleging that he attempted to kill Prosecutor Davis last July. The jury was out all night before reaching an agreement. The sentence calls for two to fourteen years' imprisonment. The trial of Jacob Bohland, indicted jointly with Mohr for the assault on Davis, has been continued till May 6.

Slain by Brother-in-Law.

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 29.—Lewis Torok, twenty-six years old, former member of the city fire department, was shot and killed by his brother-in-law, Joseph Biro, at the home of Biro. Family trouble was the cause. Biro attempted to escape from the city, but was overtaken by detectives in the railway yards and removed to jail.

Charge Against City Marshal.

Richmond, Ind., Feb. 29.—A charge of malfeasance in office has been filed against Daniel Drischell, marshal of Cambridge City, by prosecuting Attorney Jessup. As the case is not one to be prosecuted by the state, the complaint was lodged with the Cambridge City council, which probably will name a committee to investigate.

NO WAR SPECTRE

None in Sight Nor "Forty Thousand Miles Away," Says Mr. Holliday.

Washington, Feb. 29.—By the narrow margin of one vote the house of representatives rejected by 59 to 60 an amendment by Mr. Foster of Illinois to the army bill appropriating a million dollars for joint maneuvers of the militia organizations and the regular troops. Without a dissenting voice the house, by special rule, restored the provisions to increase the pay of non-commissioned officers and men and to prohibit the private employment of army musicians for pay, both of which the day before went out on points of order. On account of the protracted debate but little progress was made with the bill.

The amendment appropriating $1,500,000 for joint maneuvers provoked extended debate, Messrs. Hull and Tawney leading in opposition. The latter repeated his recent warning that if appropriations were not kept down the country would surely be confronted with a large deficit. Against the amendment Mr. Holliday of Indiana was especially vigorous. He could see no war spectre on the horizon now nor in the dim future. The country was in no danger from any quarter, near "nor forty thousand miles away." The American people, he declared, were tired of jingoism, militarism and the effort being made to divert men from peaceful pursuits to enter the military establishment. He was roundly applauded when he expressed the conviction that the money could be better expended in giving employment to men out of work. The amendment was altered so as to limit the amount to one million dollars, and as modified the amendment on division was agreed to, 56 to 48, but on the vote being taken by tellers, it was lost, 59 to 60.

The consideration of the Indian appropriation bill and a speech by Senator Reed Smoot of Utah on the currency bill consumed nearly the entire time in the senate. The Indian bill was passed. As passed by the house the bill carried an appropriation of $8,215,697, to which the senate added $1,610,123.

INSANE MOTHER'S DEED

Ohio Woman Kills Four Small Children and Herself.

Baltimore, Ohio, Feb. 29.—Mrs. J. C. Spire, wife of a farmer, three miles west of Basil, during her husband's absence, killed three of her children, fatally wounded a fourth and then committed suicide. One of the children was drowned in a well and the others were shot and their throats cut. Mrs. Spire took carbolic acid, shot herself and cut her throat. The surviving child, which may die, is a boy four years old, named Alva. The dead children are Catherine, aged three; Luella, aged six, and Jesse, aged one. It is believed Mrs. Spire suddenly became insane.

Patients Were in Danger.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 29.—The lives of seventy-five patients, some of them in a serious state, were endangered last evening when a fire broke out on the top floor of the four-story patients' ward at Grace hospital, in Chapel street. While the firemen poured water into the building, the nurses, doctors and orderlies, assisted by citizens, removed the patients to places of safety in ambulances, carriages, automobiles and other conveyances. The loss, it is believed, will not exceed $30,000.

Another Ten Per Cent Dividend.

Logansport, Ind., Feb. 29.—The receiver of the closed Goodland bank and Willard Elliott of the closed Ambia and Fowler banks, will pay another 10 per cent dividend to the depositors. The first 10 per cent dividend was paid a few weeks ago. Elliott stated that the depositors would be paid in full.

Lacks Funds for Naval Program.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 29.—The project for the rebuilding of the Russian fleet has received a setback as a result of the attitude taken by the ministry of finance, which sees no possibility under the present circumstances of the country raising the funds needed for the construction of a powerful navy.

Bribery Is Alleged.

Washington, Feb. 29.—Senator Tillman has introduced a resolution directing the secretary of the interior to send to the senate all information in his possession concerning the alleged bribing of various persons interested in the proceedings of the legislative court of Indian Territory in 1905, when descendants of Choctaw or Chickasaw Indians were deprived of their rights to tribal property.

Fell From Wharfboat.

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 29.—It has developed that the man who fell overboard from the local wharfboat Wednesday night and was drowned, was Isaac C. Huckelberry of this city. His body has not been recovered. He was a Mason and an Odd Fellow, and had worked most of his life on the river as a steamboat carpenter.

Lancets to Treat Snake Bites.

In view of the large number of deaths caused annually in Burma by snake bite it has been decided to distribute as widely as possible through the province the lancets designed by Sir Lauder Brunton for the treatment of snake bite with permanganate of potash, the efficacy of which, if the treatment is at once applied, is now established.

Admits His Foul Perjury.

Pittsburg, Feb. 29.—One confession made by Clifford Hooe, the negro coachman, that he did not tell the truth in his deposition charging Mrs. Mary Scott Hartje with improper conduct with him, was admitted as evidence and read before the jury in the trial of Augustus Hartje, John L. Welshons and Hooe, charged with conspiracy and subornation of perjury in procuring evidence for use by Hartje in his suit for divorce.

Hints of a Lynching.

Valdosta, Ga., Feb. 29.—The leader of a crowd of negroes charged with forming a conspiracy to do violence to Dr. Hall, of Howell, near here, was taken from Deputy Sheriff Prescott by a crowd of white men and is believed to have been lynched. Dr. Hall recently killed a negro in self-defense, it is claimed, and a number of the race gathered around his place and threatened retaliation.

BRADLEY IS THE VICTOR

Kentucky Elected a Republican Senator—End of the Long Senatorial Deadlock.

Frankfort Ky., February 29.—Amid scenes of wildest excitement on the floor of the house of representatives, former Governor William O'Connell Bradley, Republican candidate, was elected to succeed James B. McCreary in the United States senate for a term of six years, beginning March 4, 1909. He received sixty-four votes, barely enough to win, and was enabled to gain victory through the assistance of four anti-Beckham Democrats, Senators H. S. McNutt and Albert Charlton, and Representative Chris Mueller of Louisville and Representative E. W. Lillard of Boyle county.

They had previously voted for Democrats for senator, and their sudden rally to Bradley took the Beckham men completely by surprise, although the latter claim to have information that a deal was effected by which the liquor forces were to elect Bradley in return for the defeat of the county unit bill in the senate.

The completion of the first roll-call Friday showed Bradley 64, Beckham

60, Blackburn 1, James 1. Before the speaker could announce the result the Democrats obtained a recapitulation, and attempted to break the quorum by leaving the hall, but came back accompanied by Beckham, who authorized the withdrawal of his name and released the Democrats from the primary nomination pledge to him in hope that some other Democrat would be named who could defeat Bradley. The four bolting Democrats were surrounded by life-long party friends and urged to withdraw their support from Bradley and elect James McCreary, or any Democrat they might name, but they remained obdurate, declaring that the proposition came too late. The Democratic leaders promised a caucus to select a candidate to which the name of Beckham would not be presented, but the recalcitrants refused all offers, and the result could not be changed. The ballot was finally completed after the Democrats finished changing their votes, was as follows:

Bradley 64, Beckham 15, James 15, McCreary 10, Mayo 5, Allen 2, Smith 2, Peak 2, Newman 1, Hunt 1, Elliston 1, Stanley 1, Blackburn 1, Cantrill 1, Ellis 1, Cammack 1, Sullivan 1, McElroy 1.

There was great disorder in the chamber during recapitulation, the Republicans demanding the speaker to announce the result, and the Democrats seeking to delay, hoping to induce one of the Democrats to leave Bradley.

In a speech accepting his election, Bradley thanked the speaker for his fair and impartial rulings. He promised to use every effort as senator to secure the repeal of the 6-cent tax on tobacco.

Representative Lillard was the only one of the Democrats to explain his vote for Bradley. He said he thought the time had come to throw off the party shackles and to break up the machine, and although he did support the Democratic ticket for forty years, he believed his vote for Bradley was the best Democratic vote he ever cast.

A Sixth District Candidate

The Rev. Mr. Campbell, of Richmond, was in town today visiting the Rush county congressional delegates. While his acquaintance in this community is limited, yet he is held in popular favor by those who have met him. Wayne county promises him a strong and enthusiastic delegation.

Mr. Campbell is known as the "preacher candidate." While new in politics, he has shown a knowledge of men and affairs that is to be admired. He was born in Preble County, Ohio, and grew to manhood on a farm in Wabash County, Ind. He is a graduate of DePaul University and has been in the active ministry for ten years. He has had many calls or lectures and special addresses and if successful in this race will well represent the Sixth District.

Washington, Feb. 29.—The standing committee of correspondents has restored the privileges of the press galleries at the capitol to two newspaper men who were suspended temporarily by reason of the charges made by Representative Lilley that they had accepted money from the Electric Boat company. It was held that the transaction occurred, if at all, while the newspaper men were not under the rules made for the government of correspondents.

PROFESSOR GOLDWIN SMITH The Greatest Living Master of Style

In "The Grange," a delightful, plain, brick house, half-concealed by the network of vines that cover it, with a wide sweep of lawn and grounds filled with old trees—a whole city block in the heart of Toronto, hedged in by high walls—lives Canada's venerable author, Goldwin Smith.

This greatest living master of style in the English language, as he has been called, has had a busy life in his eighty-two years, yet his own words prove it has been a serene and peaceful one. "According to the Psalmist," he says, "if by reason of strength our years be fourscore, yet is their strength labor and sorrow," but I must say that while I have found mine full of the first, they have been free from the second."

Born in Reading, England, he was educated at Eton and Oxford, graduating in 1845; two years later was elected a Fellow of University College, where he acted as tutor for some time, and though called to the bar, he never practiced. He was prominent in the two commissions appointed to examine into the condition of Oxford University which led to a number of salutary reforms. In 1858 he was made Regius Professor of Modern History at Oxford, a post he held for eight years. During the Civil War in the United States he was a valiant champion of the Northern cause, and on his lecture tour in that country in 1864 he met everywhere enthusiastic and flattering receptions and received the degree of LL.D. from Brown University.

In November, 1868, having resigned his chair at Oxford, he again visited the United States and accepted the professorship of history at the newly-founded Cornell University at Ithaca, N. Y., where he lived for three years. On his retirement he went to Canada, being still Professor Emeritus of Cornell, where he was extremely popular with the students, who affectionately referred to him as "Goldie."

In Canada he soon found recognition and served in a number of positions that gave him opportunity to render invaluable service to the cause of education and letters, and on all questions of vital political interest his voice and his pen were ever ready. A long list of books on history, religion, national politics, philosophy and biography he has to his credit, yet a far greater bulk of material remains in his constant contributions to the newspapers and periodicals of his day. A rare scholar, a master of style, a great thinker, a fearless iconoclast, an able champion, a tireless worker, Goldwin Smith has been a mighty influence for good.

RUSHVILLE, INDIANA, FEBRUARY 29 1908

The long senatorial fight in Kentucky is over and Beckham was snuffed under. The house of representatives of Kentucky elected former Governor William O. Bradley, Republican candidate to the Senate, to succeed James B. McCreary. This is another signal victory for the Republicans in Kentucky and a strong rebuke to Beckham and his methods.

Concerning the claim that Henry county never had a candidate for congress, the Shelbyville News says:

The Henry county Republicans are claiming that their candidate, Judge William O. Barnard, should be nominated, because Henry county has never had a Republican nominee for Congress. In this, they are mistaken. Capt. Elliott, editor of the Courier, ex-Judge Eugene Bundy and ex-Judge Mark E. Forkner, can certainly remember the nomination of Gen. William A. Gross, in 1876, and his defeat in that year by the Hon. William E. Myers, of Anderson, Madison county. This was Mr. Myers' first appearance in Democratic politics, and it was the last appearance of Gen. Gross as a candidate for any political office."

A member of the French government has just expressed himself in favor of trial marriages, which some people in this country already seem to practice, judging from the number of divorces granted. We think some society woman in New York published a few months ago a book in which the same idea was advocated.

In spite of these facts and of a good deal else that is sinister we do not believe the idea will meet with much favor in this country. With us the need and sanctity of the home are recognized and revered. The home is the oldest institution in the world, and ever since the Almighty "set the solitary in families" it has existed to a greater or less extent in every land and has exerted a corresponding influence for good.

The advocates of trial marriages must be lost to all sense of parental responsibility and of decency, or else fail to realize the social and moral cataclysm that would result if their views were generally practiced.

It would mean moral degradation, the disintegration of the home, and breaking of family ties, and irresponsibility for the care of the children or making them wards of the State. Its effects upon the nation would also be disastrous, for the foundation of the nation is the home.

We need today not less but more reverence for the home, a greater bond of affection between the parents and between parents and children, tender consideration and deeper recognition of the sanctity of family life.

INDIANA POLITICS

BY ROBERT G. TUCKER

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 29.—Today 589 of the 1,467 delegates that will make up the Republican state convention, April 1 and 2, will have been selected. The number at the end of last week was 472, and to this will be added 117 today. By the end of next week 766 delegates, or more than half the entire number, will have been selected. Never before, it is said, were delegates named so far in advance of the convention. The active competition among the four candidates for the governorship is probably responsible for the early activity this year. DeKalb county, with fourteen delegates, and Martin, with eight, made their selections yesterday. Madison county, with thirty-two delegates, held primaries last night. Today the following counties will select: Lagrange, 9; Montgomery, 19; Crawford, 9; Wabash, 17; Warren, 12. These will bring the number up to 589.

It is announced that Henry Warrum of Indianapolis will be a candidate for delegates-at-large from Indiana to the Denver convention. Warrum was city attorney during John W. Holtzman's term as mayor and is one of Chairman Taggart's most active political opponents. He was one of the leaders of the successful fight against the old county organization here last week.

Some time ago Warrum was elected president of the Bryan Volunteers of Indiana. It is said that this organization exists largely on paper, but it has given Warrum prestige throughout the state with Bryan's most earnest followers, who may be strong enough in the state convention to elect him. It is understood that Warrum desires an opportunity to vote against Taggart for committeeman. Unless the forces of the latter control the convention Warrum probably will be elected. It has been the understanding that Taggart would be elected a delegate-at-large, but it is not considered likely that the convention would select two from Indianapolis.

John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers, who was named some time ago as a possible Democratic candidate for governor of Illinois, has the support of some of the leading men in the Democratic organization of that state, and if his health be such as to warrant his becoming a candidate his name may be on the Democratic primary ballot on Aug. 8. At this early stage in the proceedings he has the support of Democrats who have been able to direct nominations before there was a state primary law, and whose influence will count heavily even with one. It is recognized that he will attract a big vote in Chicago and would be a substantial help to the county ticket in case he were nominated. Mitchell is now at his headquarters here. He has been urged to take part in Indiana politics, but has refused.

That the work of road building in the northern part of the state is at a standstill on account of the high transportation rates on gravel charged by the railroads, was the statement made before the Indiana railroad commission by C. F. Hunt of the Lafayette Gravel and Concrete company. The complaint of the gravel company alleges that the rates charged by the roads for shipping gravel are not reasonable, and that the rates charged for shipping concrete products are not so favorable as rates charged by other roads on similar material under similar conditions. Mr. Hunt said it was the desire of his company that the commission establish a rate to all points on the lines of the respondent companies, and joint rates to all points on connecting lines where the gravel company would likely have patronage.

In affirming a judgment recovered by the widow of William E. Clark of Winchester on an insurance policy on her husband's life, the appellate court decided that in order to treat a policy as void because of fraudulent answers in the application for the policy, the insurance company must return the premiums it has received within a reasonable time after it learns that the answers are false. The United States Health and Accident Insurance company having kept the money received for nearly two years after it knew the real facts, the court held that the policy could not be repudiated as fraudulently obtained.

CURRENT COMMENT

Historic Landmarks.

After many years of effort and all but endless stages of discouragement the historic Fraunces' tavern, in New York city, has been secured to posterity in its original shape. It is now owned by the Society of the Sons of the Revolution, and nothing short of a revolution in American sentiment can ever turn it from its proper destiny—the enlightenment of American citizens on the stirring events of the past. Thoughtlessness and greed would have destroyed this noble relic, the place where Washington took farewell of his officers at the close of the war of independence, but for the vigilance of a small handful of patriotic New Yorkers. Other monuments of the "days that tried men's souls" throughout the country have likewise been preserved. Some few are still in danger of neglect and perhaps lie at the mercy of vandals.

Recently the name of a square in historic north Boston was changed in Sweet Spring.

Sweet spring is but a little way ahead.
The lambs will soon begin to play. The dead
Old form of winter soon will lie o'erspread
By green grass, and the April sky
Will stretch above us by and by.
The dandelion's face will glow,
The winds will gladden as they blow,
And Cupid's darts will freely fly.

The waiting buds will soon begin to sprout.
The brooks will laugh as, winding in and out,
They hurry onward to the sea. The shout
Of him who tills the soil will be Re-echoed back from hill to lea.
And then the man who mows once more
Will scuff and fuzzle as of yore
And vent his feelings horribly!

—New York Times.

order to honor a local politician, who was an adopted citizen. The same indifference to sacred associations may, unless checked by the protests of patriots, eventually obliterate other historic names or landmarks in the region of this square. In many of the countries of Europe this matter of preserving memorials is in the hands of national authorities, and historical monuments are considered the property of the people. In England there is a society formed to act as trustees for places of historical interest or natural beauty, holding powers under acts of parliament, and it is proposed to make it illegal for private owners to destroy monuments which by their associations belong to the whole nation. France, Germany and Italy exercise the right of expropriation whenever compulsion is necessary to acquire historic sites or buildings for preservation as national memorials. We are not behind foreign countries in patriotism, and we should not be less vigilant than they in keeping up incentives to patriotism in coming generations.

The Ocean Mail Project.

It is asserted by the friends of the measure to establish ocean mail lines to Brazil, Argentina and other South American countries as well as to Australasia, Japan, China and the Philippines that the sum of $1,000,000 added to the annual profits to the government from the present system of mail service will cover the cost of subventions to new steamers and vastly improve the service. The industrial benefit to the country of the construction of the new ships will, it is contended, fully justify the assuming of the financial burden by the government. On this point the Iron Trade Review says:

An item which it is believed will appeal to the senators and congressmen from the inland states is that the money which will be expended in the construction of these proposed new steamers will be distributed throughout the entire United States. A conservative estimate is that each ship will cost on an average of $1,000,000. Of this vast sum fully 90 per cent will be expended upon the labor cost involved in the production and manufacture of steel, brass, wood and other construction material, besides the boiler and engine building. The establishment of the proposed seven lines of steamships means the distribution of fully $35,000,000 among the workmen of the United States, the employment of thousands of skilled mechanics and unskilled labor now idle.

The opponents of prohibition are pointing out that Bismarck was a mighty hard drinker up to the day of his death, at the age of eighty-nine. But they carefully forget the thousands of hard drinkers who died at the age of thirty-five.

What Does a Man Gain by Profanity?

By the Right Rev. CLARENDON L. WORRELL, Anglican Bishop of Nova Scotia.

THE growth of profanity is one of the GREATEST EVILS OF THE PRESENT DAY. Some evils have a certain material result which at first may be GRATIFYING to the perpetrator. The drunkard, the impure man, the thief, the liar, the Sabbath breaker—all these may for a time have some personal enjoyment in their sin before the inevitable evil result has followed.

BUT THE PROFANE MAN HAS NOTHING OF THE KIND. HE FOULS THE AIR, HE FOULS HIS TONGUE, HE FOULS SOCIETY AND HAS GAINED NOTHING BY IT. HE SHOWS NO RESPECT FOR HIMSELF OR FOR OTHERS.

How can any one who has learned and known that "the goodness of God endureth daily" take his name and use it LIGHTLY AND THOUGHTLESSLY? Would a man bandy about among lewd companions the name of his wife or sister or child or dearest friend? Would he joke or yarn about them in such a way as to bring ridicule or contempt upon them? THEN WHY SHOULD THE NAME OF GOD, WHO STANDS TO US IN ALL THESE RELATIONS, BE TREATED SO?

DO YOU KNOW THE MEANING OF YOUR OATH? WHEN YOU DAMN THIS OR DAMN THAT OR DAMN YOUR ENEMY OR DAMN YOUR FRIEND OR DAMN YOURSELF, HAVE YOU EVER THOUGHT WHAT IT MEANS TO BE DAMNED?

If you do not believe in future reward or punishment, you are using an idle and meaningless expression and marking yourself as an INSINCERE AND WITLESS man. If you do believe that there is some time when you must answer for your deeds, if you have listened to experience and seen how true it is that your sin will find you out, YOU SURELY COULD NOT MEAN YOU WISH SUCH A FATE FOR ANY ONE.

The raving maniac or the helpless invalid, the ruined gambler or the fettered prisoner, these are some who have been DAMNED HERE AND NOW, whatever may be the future for them. Would you go to the hospital, the asylum, the prison and JEER at them?

THE GREAT DIVIDE IS A RARE TREAT

Many Rushville People will go to Connorsville Monday Night to See it

The mere announcement that "The Great Divide" has been booked for an engagement at the Auditorium in Connorsville for next Monday night, will probably create an unprecedented "run" as every one who keeps in touch with things theatrical will welcome a chance to see this phenomenally successful dramatic offering.

No play ever written by an American dramatist has won such widely heralded approbation by the foremost dramatic reviewers. Many critics have called it the "long waited, great American play;" all theatrical writers have agreed that it marks an epoch in American literature, and it has never yet had an adverse criticism as a forceful brilliant and thoroughly American drama. "The Great Divide" comes under the personal direction of Henry Miller, who presented the piece all last season, and until very recently in New York, first at the Princess theatre and later at Daly's theatre, for over five hundred performances to capacity business. The production, including the entire scenic equipment will be given precisely the same as during the New York management.

Rushville theatre goers will show their appreciation and sense of judgment of good things theatrical by turning out in goodly numbers.

THE FREEZING PROCESS.

Why It Is That Ice at Times Will Crack or Burst.

Ice never bursts from freezing. As soon as the liquid of which it is composed is frozen solid expansion ceases. The cracking or bursting of ice is brought about in this way: When water is subjected to extreme cold ice crystals will gradually form on its surface until the same are covered, with a thin coat of what appears to be wet snow. From this outer coating of ice crystals all subsequent freezing goes downward, the ice thickening according to the degree of cold. The water which is being converted into ice now begins to expand, creating a pressure upon the unfrozen water below. This pressure is both downward and outward, and in case the water under observation is in a vessel the sides and bottom of the receptacle supply the resistance.

As the freezing process continues the pressure upon the confined water and air in the interior of the bulk increases until something yields. If the vessel be stronger than the ice stratum that has formed over the surface the layer of ice will be bent upward at the center, that being the weakest point, on account of the fact that the outer edges of the congealed mass are frozen fast to the sides of the vessel in which the experiment is being made. In this condition the center of the ice continues to rise or bulge until it bursts from the resistance of the water below. Could the vessel be tapped from below and the water drawn off no amount of freezing would be sufficient to crack or bulge the ice layer on the surface.

YANKEE DOOOLE BOY WAS ALL THE CANDY

Being One of the Best "All Around" and Entertaining Productions Seen Here Lately

There were some features about the Grand's attraction last night—"The Yankee Doodle Boy"—that are worthy of more than passing notice. To begin with, the producers deserve credit for putting together a most entertaining production. It was a show built upon lines that too many fail to follow. There was enough melodramatic situations to please those who like thrills; there was enough song, dancing and musical specialties to catch another clientele of theatre going people, and there was comedy and up-to-date lines in slang and breezy American-English of phonetic construction, in diction to please still another class. And the entire show was Cohesive throughout. Managers of smaller theatrical enterprises would profit if they would imitate, as far as possible the theatrical offerings of the larger cities, and they could not select a better model for this class of material than George Cohan. Halton Powell, who owns the show, who wrote the play, and who handled the character of Milton Reynolds, the villain, is a genius. No stronger character has ever appeared on the local boards and a finished actor he easily ranks with those appearing in the high class, larger city attractions. He is a finished actor and that he understands the histrionic game was evidenced in the manner he cared for details.

Another clever bit of acting was the character work of Bert White, who gave an intelligent and true conception of a dago traveling minstrel. Everything from the smartness of the program to the last line was refreshing for a "small town" show. Such talented men as Powell soon graduate to larger and more lucrative fields and are soon lost in the theatrical trust, which buys talent, body and soul.

Mr. Barnickel's Portrait

[Original.]

When Mr. Barnickel got rich the first thing he wanted was a crest, which he found, though his title to it was rather thin, and the next was his portrait to hang in his drawing room and to hand down to his descendants as the lineaments of the reinstitutor of the family. Arnold Elliott was at that time the principal portrait painter in the city where Mr. Barnickel lived, and to him Mr. Barnickel gave the order, agreeing to pay for the portrait $500.

Now, although Mr. Barnickel had dealt in hides, an article not calculated to stimulate the imaginative faculty, his imagination was strong. The moment he set himself up as a reinstitutor of his family he saw himself a fine looking, dignified gentleman of aristocratic mien and benevolent countenance. In truth, he was a crafty looking man with a money making nose. He saw the picture of himself growing up in the hands of the artist as he was and not as he thought himself. He made several protests, but when he attempted to point out the errors he signally failed. He could not give the artist his conception of himself, and the artist had no choice but to paint him as Mr. Barnickel. When the portrait was finished, there sat the merchant looking for all the world as if he were buying a cargo of hides.

When Mr. Barnickel saw the portrait he refused to accept it on the ground that his best friend wouldn't take it for him.

As soon as Mr. Elliott got a little spare time he hooked Mr. Barnickel's portrait up against the wall of his studio, covered it with a sheet of drawing paper and on the paper sketched prison bars. This done, he cut out the paper between the bars, leaving Mr. Barnickel in limbo. Underneath he placed the title of the picture, "A Prisoner For Debt."

It was not long before one who knew Mr. Barnickel well saw him behind bars. Had he loved Mr. Barnickel he would have gone to him at once with the information. But he didn't love Mr. Barnickel—few people did—so he went about telling those who knew the hide dealer of the rare sight to be seen, and Mr. Elliott's studio at once became very popular. Indeed, from among those who visited it to see "A Prisoner For Debt" he secured a number of orders.

The episode at last reached a member of the Barnickel family, and the family head was informed. The same morning he drove up to Mr. Elliott's studio, alighted in a hurry, climbed the stairs in anger and burst into the studio in a passion. There hung the picture, and there sat the artist quiescent at his easel.

"What do you mean by perpetrating that outrage?" shouted Mr. Barnickel, pointing to the picture.

"What outrage?" asked the artist without discontinuing his work.

"Putting my portrait behind bars."

"Your portrait? That isn't your portrait. You said yourself that no one would recognize it."

The merchant saw that he could not demand the removal of the objectionable features without eating his words. He went out, slamming the door behind him. He had been triumphant in too many deals to be beaten by a picture maker; he would find a way to get round the "imposition."

But before he found this way he heard that a new feature had been attached to the portrait. The artist had removed the bars and the title, replacing the latter with the words "You Want Too Much."

The title fitted the expression on the face so well and Mr. Barnickel's idiosyncrasies were so keenly appreciated that a new lot of people came pouring into the studio to see Old Scrouge, as they called him, buying hides, though some declared that he was disputing the price of his portrait. Mr. Barnickel was made aware of the change by receiving an anonymous letter inquiring which of these two interpretations of the title was correct.

By this time the merchant had consulted his lawyer, who advised him that the most satisfactory way out of the difficulty was to pay for the picture and take it away. Therefore on receipt of the anonymous note he drew his check for $500, jumped into his carriage and drove to Mr. Elliott's studio. On entering his eyes naturally sought the picture. The expression had been changed. Instead of Mr. Barnickel beating down a seller, it was Mr. Barnickel just having bought at his own price. There was no title attached to the picture. Instead a bit of cardboard rested upon it on which in big letters was inscribed "Sold."

Mr. Barnickel saw the word and was seized with a new anxiety. He, and only he, could not see its double meaning.

"There's your check. Send that daub home," he said.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Barnickel. Don't you see the card on the picture?"

"That's bosh. No one would want my"— He stopped. He was about to yield to his beating down propensities and add "ugly mug," but remembered himself.

"I don't think the purchaser cares much for it," said Mr. Elliott coolly. "You might get it at an advance on the original price."

"How much is the"— Mr. Barnickel was about to say swindle, but feared to make matters worse.

Mr. Elliott arose, went to the picture and cut it in ribbons.

"The episode is ended, Mr. Barnickel. I have to thank you for many orders secured through your portrait."

FOUR HUNDRED AT THIS TRIAL

New Move in New Castle Liquor Fight Will Bring Hundreds to Rushville

ANDY WARD HERE FRIDAY

Says we Can Prepare to Enter town the "City of Roses 400"—Lake Erie Excursions

Andy Ward, the deposed New Castle saloonist, was here yesterday in the Rush circuit court in the interest of his case which was venued from Henry county. While here he stated that he intended to fight the case to the last ditch. His saloon was closed in the City of Roses by a remonstrance filed against issuing him a license. Ward said yesterday that Rushville could arrange to care for over four hundred people who will be obliged to come here at the trial. Everyone who signed the remonstrance will be summoned to appear in court and swear that the signature is genuine.

The case will consume several days and in all probability stock in the Lake Erie railroad company will jump several points. It will prove the greatest boon for that corporation since the oil boom in Indiana when they reaped a harvest.

The New Castle Courier says of the Ward case:

"The purpose of the visit of A. H. Ward to Rushville Friday afternoon was to introduce a motion through his attorneys, into the Rush Circuit court, asking that the original Henry township remonstrance cards be produced in that court for examination. Just what significance may be attached to that motion can best be conjectured.

In the Madison county court a ruling was made this week in the Elwood remonstrance case, in which the court held that initials on a remonstrance are illegal, therefore the remonstrance was declared illegal. The cards, according to the ruling, must bear the christian name of the signer, in order to avoid repetitions of names. Signatures may be identical where initials are used, but the christian name may be far different."

HEAVEN OR HELL WHICH WILL IT BE

Was Question that Evangelist Willis Asked his Hearers Last Evening

VERY DRAMATIC SERMON

Speaker Used Noah and the Ark as an Object Lesson on Subject

Evangelist Willis preached to a large and enthusiastic audience last evening at the First Presbyterian church.

He chose for his subject "Heaven or Hell," taking his subject lesson from Noah and the ark. He said in part: "The Bible from beginning to end is a series of object lessons and most of them deal with the one thing, the advent of our Lord Jesus Christ.

"The lives of the patriarchs, laws of sacrifice wanderings and adventures of the children of Israel, the word of the prophets are all great object lessons. In the new testament every event in the life and death of our Lord are object lessons and deal with the advent of Jesus and the church which He purchased with His blood.

"There is a heaven and a hell. Hell is God's prison house for the wicked. Heaven is God's paradise for the righteous. All free formal agents have the right of choice and the character here predicts the destiny yonder.

"Men lose their souls because of their own choice through their own volition. God never sent any man to hell. Every one who goes to hell must cross over the dead body of a crucified Redeemer. Hence, dear hearers, if you are lost it is your own fault. Will you not flee and escape the wrath to come?

"In the ark the faithless were not saved, only the faithful and there were only eight; yet God spared them 120 years. He is always patient, but as the flood came at last, so will the flood of death come upon you sooner or later.

"While the people sneered, Noah obeyed. Faith always waits, does its duty and faith has its reward. He who built the ark at God's word was saved by the ark. Many help build a church, but does not pray in it. Many a man rings the church bell for the service, but cannot ring the bells of heaven.

"Many make excuses and can't leave behind somethings. Noah had no skates in the ark, nor card tables. We must leave them out if we would enter in."

Many farmers were in this city today despite the bad roads.

HIS COURTSHIP

By HELEN R. MARTIN,
Author of "Tillie: A Mennonite Maid."

COPYRIGHT, 1907, By McCLURE, PHILLIPS & COMPANY.

"I can understand, Peter," said Georgiana thoughtfully, "your preference for fiction rather than for a statistical, scientific work like that. No doubt you feel without fully comprehending it the more inward significance of fancies that embody spiritual truths than of isolated hard facts about the Back Boned family which lead nowhere."

"Now," mused Kinross, "that wouldn't be so bad if she weren't talking to a farmhand. If only she didn't give herself over so entirely to her little pose of being superior," he thought ruefully, "she might be very attractive—she's so tremendously good looking. I wonder what she would be like if she dropped it."

"Pete," said Daisy, "one of these days I want you to hire Abe's horse and buggy from him and take me for a drive and show me the country, will you? Of course I'll pay the price. Abe's so tight across the chest he'd never give it to us for nothing."

"Oh, Daisy," gently protested Georgiana, "what an expression! Instead of trying to give these people higher standards you would debase their taste with your low—yes, low—slang."

"Economical," Daisy corrected herself. "Abe's so economical, I mean. Will you take me driving, Pete?" she asked ingratiatingly.

Instead of looking gratified, as she expected him to do, Peter appeared rather daunted at the prospect.

"Oh, Pete," Daisy reassured him, "you needn't mind me. Now, if it were Miss Ellery that asked you you might be scared white!"

"You see," Pete explained apologetically, "us we're so common out here towards what you are—no wonder if a body felt funny takin' one of yous buggy ridin'. Us we don't know nothin' but to sleep and feed our faces."

"If you will make yourself worthy of better things, Peter, they will come to you," said Georgiana earnestly.

"All the good things of the universe come to him who is ready for them."

"Good things? What, now, would you call good things?" he asked curiously.

"Love, for instance," said Georgiana, with uplifted countenance.

"Umph!" he grunted. "I never thought so much of this here love like some thinks. I always held that Adam would of been better off if he'd kep' his rib."

"Why, Peter," cried Daisy, "I never would have suspected you of having such views!"

They had reached the farm, and at this moment they encountered the girl Eunice carrying two heavy pails of milk from the barn toward the spring house. Abe, the farmer's son, walked at her side, apparently pursuing her with some request which she refused him, for her face was troubled and she hurried a step ahead of him.

"Almost before he knew what he was doing Kinross was at the girl's side, relieving her of both her pails. She colored with confusion before a gallantry to which she was unaccustomed, while Abe scowled resentfully and skulked off in another direction.

"Did you see that?" asked Georgiana as she and Daisy went into the kitchen. "It would never occur to Abe to carry those heavy pails for that slender looking girl. I believe there is a latent fineness in this Peter!"

"It's awfully latent, dear," said Daisy, with unaccustomed disagreement. "Don't you think so?"

"I believe that he has fine, though undeveloped perceptions or intuitions," affirmed Georgiana, "which, with a little encouragement, may reveal him to himself."

CHAPTER VII.

ONCE again, just as the dusk was gathering, Eunice lingered by the fence near the spring house. The girl's heart was on fire this evening, and she felt that she would stifle or shriek if she went into the house and shut herself within those dreary whitewashed walls. Here in the open she might breathe free. Today her pent up feelings had reached the high water mark, and tonight they must have outlet or she must suffocate.

What was the meaning, she was asking herself in bewilderment, of this mingled ecstasy and woe which were now her daily portion when of old so long ago it seemed, though in reality it was only three weeks ago that he—the man from the city—had come among them? her soul had been cold, dormant, incapable of feeling aught of pain or pleasure? And now—to the tips of her fingers was she tingling with life, with burning emotions which stifled and pained, yet gave her the first taste of joy she had ever known. For the first time in her memory the heavy loneliness in which she had always lived seemed lifted. Something in her which had always been starved was fed. It had become worth while to rise up in the morning and go through with her tasks. The days palpitated now and throbbed. They were no longer the dull, dead drag they had been. There was always the possibility of a word or act of kindness from him. Never before in her life had she known kindness, but he had been kind to her. He had tried to shield her from her foster father's anger and had then hidden the newspaper for her. He had helped her when he saw her burdened with her heavy buckets of milk. He had several times spoken to her with a friendly interest.

These episodes, entirely trifling in themselves, appeared large and luminous to this girl, accustomed only to slights. Her imagination, fired by his utter difference from any one she had ever before seen, made of him a creature whose least word or act was weighted with significance. Her absorbing and passionate interest in everything about him—his voice, his accent (so strange to her ears), the movements of his white hands (never had she seen such hands), the way he sat or walked or stood or looked—all that he did or uttered was fascinating, intoxicating. And today her feelings had suddenly reached a climax of intensity which had amazed herself. It had come upon her when she had seen him return from his afternoon outing in company with the two young ladies—young ladies of his kind of people, of education, beauty, worldly knowledge, money, freedom from drudgery, everything which made a woman appear attractive, everything which she lacked.

Apparently he had been spending the afternoon with them. There was the privilege of looking upon him for hours together, of hearing the sound of his voice, of drinking in his thoughts about things (how hungry her own mind was to read all his thoughts and feelings), and—oh, bitterness!—they had all three come upon her when, weary and soiled and overlaid, she was awkwardly lugging her heavy buckets across the garden. She had fancied his snowy hands had shrunk from touching her soiled ones as he took the buckets from her. The overwhelming sense of her own inferiority in the face of the contrast between herself and the boarders had been followed by a passion of inward rebellion that had left her physically exhausted. It had not yet spent itself as just now she lingered in the dusk by the spring house fence. Her heart burned within her with a feeling that she did not understand, for the passion of jealousy was to her as unknown as the passion of love. Her own blinding, consuming emotions were appalling to herself in their utter strangeness and newness.

He had said that he wished to assume a farmhand's disguise because he didn't want to associate with the new guests. Why, then, was he spending whole afternoons with them? Was he repenting him of his whim? And they, even though they thought him a mere farmhand, could not fail to find happiness in being with him, for, farmhand or gentleman, he was himself.

The young ladies appeared to her very stupid not to recognize that he was not a farmhand. To be sure, they probably did not know many farmhands and so did not see how impossible it was, but they had only to compare him with Abe and his father to see the absurdity of it.

This evening, for the first time since he had come to the farm, she felt to wondering in a vague, indefinite way what was his mental image of herself, whom he saw only at her drudgery, treated slightly by every one, always looking hideous in her working clothes, shy before him even to cowardice. That day he had found her with the newspaper he had evidently supposed that her starting and turning white had been caused by her fear of being caught in the act of disobeying her foster father. She had read his look of half contemptuous pity clearly enough, and it had served to increase her agony of embarrassment before him. Then his poorly concealed mockery at her not knowing about that great man, Andrew Carnegie—how that had mortified her! And now to heighten the effect of her own uncomeliness here were these well dressed, well looking, well educated and worldly wise young ladies daily before his eyes. Oh, if only she could creep into a corner and remain unseen while still not losing the bliss of seeing him! But, then, there was the ecstasy of having him occasionally speak to her. The few dozen words he had spoken to her in the time he had been with them were graven deep in her heart. Why should he seek to talk to her now and then if he utterly despised her—he who at first had meant to avoid even those two girls from the town by assuming a farmhand's garb? He never talked to Ollie. Why did he speak to her? True, their few encounters had been quite accidental. He had not sought her out. Perhaps he took the trouble to speak kindly to her because he was sorry for one whom every one else half despised.

Her thoughts were interrupted by the sound of approaching footsteps and voices. The two young ladies were coming toward her across the grass plot.

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S BOUQUET

After a Reception President's Wife Gives It to Some Young Girl.

Natural flowers as adjuncts to women's costumes seem to have passed away except at the official levees in Washington. Mrs. Roosevelt invariably carries a cluster of flowers, which she uses as a graceful foil against the multitudes which seek to grasp her hand during the long official receptions. She has adopted the pleasant habit of presenting a bouquet to the wives of the cabinet members who assist her, and she always asks the color and variety of each gown before ordering the bouquets.

Another habit she has formed is to present her bouquet to some young girl just as she ascends the grand stairway in the state corridor when the levee is ended. At the diplomatic reception she singled out Miss Grace Jarvis, granddaughter of Mrs. James McMillan of Michigan, for the honor. The bouquet was of purple orchids, and Miss Jarvis has cleverly pressed them in her herbarium. Miss Anna Anderson of Cleveland, O., received an exquisite cluster of lilies of the valley at the congressional reception. Receiving Mrs. Roosevelt's bouquet is now an honor sought as eagerly as getting a bride's bouquet or being selected as queen of love and beauty at a tournament.

NEW PRIZE FOR AIRSHIPS.

International Competition at Munich, Germany, From May 1 to Oct. 1.

With the object of promoting aerial navigation Dr. Gans, chairman of the airship section of the Bavarian Automobile club, has offered a prize of 10,000 marks to be awarded to a flying machine at the Munich exhibition between May 1 and Oct. 1. Competitors of any nationality are eligible for this prize.

The prize will be awarded to the aeronaut who, starting from the ground, succeeds in flying or remaining suspended in the air above the space assigned to him for the purpose for ten minutes and in landing within that area after the ten minutes have elapsed. Balloons or flying machines fitted with balloons are not eligible for competition.

Intending competitors must inscribe their names on the list in the office of the sports committee of the exhibition "Munich, 1908." They must, moreover, send in descriptions of their flying machines, accompanied by photographs or sketches, and pay an entrance fee.

The address of the sports committee of the exhibition "Munich, 1908," is Neuhäuserstrasse, 10 and 11, Munich, Germany.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

THE DREAD OF RABIES.

Out of All Proportion to the Frequency of the Disease.

Few accidents are more terrifying to the sufferer than to be bitten by a dog supposed to be mad, and there are few conditions in which prompt and intelligent action on the part of the bystanders is more desirable.

Although nearly all warm blooded animals are susceptible to rabies, it is most commonly seen in dogs. There are two forms—the "furious" and the "dumb." In the furious type after a period of melancholy or depression the animal becomes restless and irritable, with a tendency to run away and snap at everything in sight, finally becoming subdued and sullen and dying of paralysis and exhaustion. In dumb rabies the stage of irritability is absent. The dog prowls about in a listless way, with his head down and lower jaw dropped. At the same time there is difficulty in swallowing.

It is often impossible to tell from a dog's actions whether it is rabid or not. But if instead of killing the animal as quickly as possible, as is often unwisely done, the owner captures it and keeps it for a few days under lock and key the question answers itself. A rabid dog always dies in from four to eight days, so that if the animal recovers the bitten persons may be sure that they are not going to develop hydrophobia.

In any suspicious case the wound should immediately be squeezed under hot water and if deep be incised freely, so that cauterization with either a hot iron or with strong nitric acid (not with lunar caustic) may be thoroughly done. At the same time the dog should be kept under observation, or if already killed the head and neck should be packed in ice and preserved for medical examination.

Even if it seems certain that the animal was rabid the patient should not despair, for it is estimated that only 15 per cent of those bitten by rabid animals actually develop the disease, and if the Pasteur preventive inoculations are promptly begun recovery is almost certain.

The popular dread of rabies is out of all proportion to the relative frequency of the disease, and the length to which it may go is shown by the instances in which people have developed and even died of false hydrophobia, a nervous condition due to fright and simulating to some extent the real malady. —Youth's Companion.

BURNING THE YULE LOG.

A Survival From the Adoration Once Offered to the Sun.

In some parts of Germany the Yule log is placed on the hearth on Christmas eve and if possible kept burning for two or three days. Then a piece of it is laid aside for the purpose of lighting the next year's log and of guarding the household from harm. Pieces of fir wood charred but not quite burned out in the Christmas fire are also placed under the family bed in some German villages to avert the dreaded lightning stroke, which appears in this relation to be the type of fire in its evil aspect, in contradistinction from the solar orb, the representative of beneficent light and warmth. The custom of burning a Yule log for three days and nights in each homestead is almost certainly a survival from the adoration once offered to the sun at the winter solstice.

Three centuries after the Christian era sun worship was still maintained in Brittany, and in Normandy not more than 100 years ago the household fire was extinguished on Dec. 24 and the Christmas log was ignited by the aid of a flame procured from the lamp burning in the neighboring church. This fact affords a curious instance of the probable transference of respect and reverence from the sacred fire of a purely heathen creed to the ecclesiastical lights of Catholicism. When the pagan rites for procuring unsullied fire were forbidden or fell into desuetude the ideas to which they owed their origin and development, instead of perishing, continued to exist more or less perfectly by attaching themselves to usages and ceremonies having no direct association with them.

THE BIGGEST EVER

San Francisco Is to Have the Grandest Naval Display In Nation's History.

MR. METCALF'S PROMISE

Secretary of the Navy, a Californian, Is Allowing His Native Enthusiasm to Dominate the Plan.

Forty-five American Fighting Ships Will Occupy San Francisco Bay in April.

Washington, Feb. 29.—When the battleship fleet reaches San Francisco about the middle of April, Secretary Metcalf's promise to the people of the Pacific coast of "the grandest naval display in the history of the country" will be realized. Plans for the "display" have been perfected in detail by the navy department.

Forty-five American fighting ships will occupy San Francisco bay. The secretary of the navy, aboard the Yankton as his flagship, will review the fleet. The ships, which include the sixteen battleships of Admiral Evans's squadron, besides the West Virginia and Nevada; the heavy 14,500-ton cruisers Tennessee, Washington, South Dakota, California, Pennsylvania, Colorado and Maryland; the cruisers Charleston, Milwaukee, St. Louis and Albany and the complement of torpedo boats and auxiliary ships will be anchored in the bay from Mission wharf to Hunter's Point. This position is in view of both San Francisco and Oakland.

Secretary Metcalf, a Californian, is allowing his native enthusiasm to dominate and is taking a personal interest in every detail of the plans being made.

TRADE IS QUIET

Wholesale Centers Find Merchants Buying Very Cautiously.

New York, Feb. 29.—Bradstreet's weekly review of trade today says: Distribution of staple goods by jobbers tends to increase as the spring buying season advances and the large number of buyers' excursions draw merchants to the market, but there is a consensus of opinion that buying is in a high degree conservative, and staple goods and what may be classed as necessities comprise the heaviest part of the business. Retail trade is very quiet except where price reductions on winter-weight goods tempt buyers and final distributive demand unquestionably feels the reduced purchasing power of the public at large, due to short time or reduction of earnings in industry. Wholesale trade is quiet as a whole.

Word from Shanghai has it that there is a growing distrust in British commercial circles on the Chinese coast of the entire policy of the Japanese government in the far East.

Lords Will Block It.

London, Feb. 29.—The woman suffrage bill passed its second reading in the house of commons by a majority of 179, but there is no possibility of its passing the house of lords.

TO CATCH CRIMINALS

Startling Theories Advanced by Professor Muensterberg.

HOW ELECTRICITY IS USED.

Harvard Psychologist Would Measure by Galvanometer Amount of Mental Excitement Prisoner on Trial Displayed—Claims List of Hundred Words; Also Sure Detective Method.

Professor Hugo Muensterberg of Harvard university advanced two new and startling theories for the detection of criminals by psychological methods in an address on "Psychology and Crime" at the City club in Chicago the other afternoon.

The first was to measure the resistance of the body to an electric current to determine the subtlest variations of mental excitement. This might be used to tell if a man is lying. The second might be described as "catching a criminal with a list of 100 words."

"The mere fact that a suspect shows excitement when he is being questioned may mean nothing, especially as long as we cannot tell whether the excitement is due to the crime or the strain of the criminal procedure," said Professor Muensterberg. "But if he becomes excited suddenly, when the name of a hidden accomplice or the location of the crime is mentioned, this ought to have considerable value. To determine the existence of such mental excitement we have in the past depended on instruments to measure the acceleration of the pulse or quicker breathing or muscular twitching. But these are comparatively crude, and with a new method we can determine the most subtle mental excitement, so slight that none of these instruments would note it. This is by means of a galvanometer, which measures the body's resistance to an electric current passing through it. I have determined that the sweat glands in the skin are under the influence of the emotions, and so by placing the electrodes in the hands of the person to be examined the resistance of the skin to the current will betray even the slightest emotional changes."

"The courts so far have had little to do with psychologists, and the furthest psychology has been applied in any of them is to refuse to trust the optical impressions of a witness who is totally blind or the acoustic reports of an absolutely deaf man. The subject of variations of memory has had no place in criminal procedure. Even an oath means nothing in this way, for I have found by experiments that the subjective feeling of intensified memory which it seems to encourage in no way makes a witness safe from the tricks of the memory. Hypnotism has figured in the courts, but the popular impression has, as usual, been wrong. No man can be hypnotized into committing a crime.

"An interesting way of detecting crime might be known as the 'association of ideas method.' Every time a word is spoken the hearer at once associates some other idea with it. I say 'door,' you think of 'house' or 'room' or whatever other notion fits first into your head.

"To show you how this will work in the detection of crime, let me tell you of an experience I had. A suspect had been brought to me for a psychological test. He was perfectly frank and said he did not even know why he should be suspected of anything wrong. I repeated to him a list of 100 common words and asked him to name the first thing that occurred to his mind in connection with each word. Then I noted the length of time it took him to answer by means of a stop watch. Out of the 100 words he replied to ninety-four with normal swiftness, between three-fifths and one and one-quarter seconds.

"But there were six words at which his mind halted for more than two and a half seconds. He did not know that he took longer to answer to these words, nor did he know that I noticed it. But the words were 'money,' 'bank,' 'check,' 'forger,' 'prison,' 'theft.' Future criminal proceedings were the result of this test.

"I have found that any man who has committed a crime always keeps in the background of his mind the memory of that crime as an idea he wants to suppress. When anything is suggested which in any way is connected with the idea he is trying to suppress, his mind becomes confused and slow, or it may become unduly excited, and he may blurt out a word suggested only because of the crime.

"Such a test is one against which no shrewdness of the witness and no skill of his lawyer can protect a suspect. The more he tries to guard himself the more certain he is to betray himself.

"But psychology has no standing in the courts at present, and with some of the experiences which the public has had with experts in recent years I do not think it is looking for more of them. The only way that any psychologist ever wants to be an expert in court is to be entirely under the jurisdiction of the court and not employed by either side. We are not handwriting experts."

CAMPAIGN YEAR

AND

THE YEAR 1908 WILL MAKE GREAT HISTORY

Probably no year since the Civil War has as great influence upon the United States as the coming year. The Presidential contest, both for nomination and election, involves much more than mere party rivalry. It involves the approval or rejection of the great economic reforms which mark the beginning of a new epoch in American history. It is a fight affecting every man, woman and child, and upon which the interest of the whole world is focused.
